Juniors ball team champs

August 24th, in Claremont, with rainy weather caus-ing a three hour delay, the Madoc Juniors started their bid for the OASA

Juniors started their bid for the OASA Championship.

Their first game was against Have-lock. Gary Finch pitched the complete game with Madoc defeating Havelock seven to three (7-3). Their next game on Saturday was against Merlin with Randy Gray and Gary Finch sharing the pitching duties and defeated Merlin by a score of (7-4), seven to four. In a very close game on Sunday morning the Madoc team met Chesley with neither of these teams having lost a game to this point. The loser would have to play several games back to back in order to stay in the competition.

In the 4th inning with the score 1-0 for Madoc and 2 men on and no one out, the 3rd batter hit a long fly ball to centre fielder Dave Weir, who with nagging problems to his shoulder, made a throw to secoond base to hold the man on first with the other run scoring. This made one out and the score was tied. Dave Weir had to come out of the game at that point and following the game was taken to Uxbridge hospital. struck out by Gary Finch thus retiring the side.

The score remained tied for the 5th inning and in the top of the 6th inning with one out Brian Reid hit a home run putting Madoc up 2-1. The next batter Gary Finch got on with a walk followed by Kevin McCoy getting on with an error to the pitcher. Perry McCluckie grounded out to short stop making two out and two men on base. Randy Gray then came up and knocked in Gary Finch with a lingle making the score 3-2, Madoc, which was how this very exciting game ended putting Madoc in the finals against either Merlin or Chesley with Chesley coming out the winner. Uncle Walt to rescue

NOTE: It remains somewhat of a mystery how the following later appeared in a large daily newspaper, but the characters it it, some local, may put a smile on your faces. It turns out a man named Paul Corey, with wife and three-year-old boy had some car trouble in these parts when he tried to make it to a friend's birthday friend's birthday party, and a Madoc OPP officer did what not many of us would dare do. And so here

First our new Volvo wouldn't start and was Lowed away for a closer look by some local, recommended mechanics. Mary was anxious to get bome. She was unhappy that we couldn't leave the day before the party but a timer belt had to be brought in from Kingston. By noon we were driving on Highway 7 just west of Kaladar when I lost power.I was able to coast to a was able to coast to a very narrow shoul-der. I felt uncomfort-able leaving wife and son there as I hitch-hiked to Kaladar. But the kind owner of Paddick's Sunoco listened to my plight and said: 'Take the truck'.

I collected the family. Mary entertained Brennan as best she could by running him up and down, buying treasures at a yard sale and exploring a fruit sures at a yard sale and exploring a fruit stand which sold, strangely enough, New Jersey blueber-ries. And the garage found a shredded timer belt without a

If you are up on modern education, you are aware that the golden rule is now tarnished and in ddanger of becoming rusty. It has been observed by some people (moralists, philosophers, preathers, politicians, conservatives, liberals, etc.) that the day of 'do unto others' has become 'do to thyself first!

Nostalgia buffs love to returnto one.

love to returnto one and two-room school-houses and run their nouses and run their fingernails across slate boards and inhale the dust as they pound the stuf-fing of blackboard erases. I remember erasers. I remember how I used to wave my arm in the air with the hope of being chosen to go outside for that 'task'.

At the risk of sounding cynical, I must report that some teachers are upset over the new ways of education.
One acquaintance retired early from teaching when she discovered that a student could stand in class and tell her where to go. (and it wasn't to the bath-room). Horror tales are reported regard-ing armed guards and armed students in large city schools. Of course that could never happen in our schools. How did it happen that students can sue teachers if the way rules are enforced is not liked? Private, public and parochial $ schools have us embroiled in have us emotous conroversy while parents are up in arms and complain-ing about the lack of more intelligent more intelligent graduates. I guess getting an 'A' in lunch period, study hall and spitwadding doesn't count much towards life skills!

Just in case you've been away too long, schools is in session schools is in session in our province. Rulers, pens, pencils, erasers and spitwads once again occupy chilsren's attention. A question, 'should the golden rule be brought out again to give our education the edge that seems to have gotten ragged?' Good answer! And know you, well, you know, etc.

The Marmora Fair took advantage of good weather over the weekend to hold one of the most successful fairs ever. One fairboard spokesperson thought the attendance was up for all three days. The Labor Day event got off with a bang on Saturday night when the demolition derby drew a large crowd and drivers from around the area. Many people came to the fair just to see the horse races but the horse pulls also attracted many loyal fans. A runaway team resulted in two serious injuries, but that was the only flaw in an otherwise flawless fair.

for controlling rables in wild foxes.

Ministry aircraft will drop 12,700 baits-liver-coated sponge cubes containing a liquid rabies vaccine in a test area bounded by Goder-ich, Blyth, Seaforth and Bayfield in southwestern Ontario. 'Baits with a mark-Baits with a marker dye were dropped in the same area last year, and subsequent studies showed that two out of every three foxes ate the sponge cube,' said Natural Resources Minister Vincent Kerrio.

The vaccine to be

The vaccine to be used in this trial will distribute around the mouth of the fox as it chews the sponge, and then be absorbed and then be absorbed into its system. The vaccine has proven effective in 80 per cent of the foxes tested in the laboratory.

'Selected trappers have agreed to collect fox blood samples between mid-October and mid-November. An analysis of these samples will tell us how effective this immunization' procedure has been. Once we have these results, we hope to be able to put into effect full-scale control for high rabies areas of Ontario,' said Mr. Kerrio. 'Selected trappers

The plastic bags are clearly marked with a warning label. Residents are being asked not to touch them. The baits will be dropped on gravel pits, fields, and along the edge of woodland - away from human habitation.

As part of this control strategy, work is also under way to produce longer-lasting vaccines that will be effective on skunks as well as foxes.

Algae bloom naturally caused

The 1984 algae bloom in Stoco Lake near the village of Tweed was an unusu-al but natural al but natural phenomenon, a report released
recently by the Ontario Ministry of the Environment

The report on the 'Investigation of Nuisance Algae and Water Quality of Stoco Lake' absolves

the Village of Tweed sewage treatment lagoon as the cause of excessive phosphor-ous that contributed to the algae bloom in the summer of 1984.

The study found that the floating blue-green algae that developed on the lake were blown by a light breeze to concentrate on the Greenwood Park shore. That kept the recreational area unfit for swimming for several days.

The report notes that the water quality in Stoco Lake has improved significantly since the sewage treatment facilities were upgraded in 1976. While Stoco Lake remains a very productive body of water, the algae develop easily under certain conditions.

Landowners battle erosion

The intiative of landowners along the Otonabee River is resulting in protection for the river's banks. The threat of tion for the river's banks. The threat of loss of property and the need for aestheti-cally pleasing control has led landowners to the Otonabee Region Conservation Authority for advice.

Ronald Brown of Otonabee Township approached the Conservation Authorthe ity regarding the construction of a retaining wall which would also allow access to the water. A wall of armour stone five tiers high and approximately 30 and approximately 30 metres long was designed and installed by a local contractor. Behind the stone is a continuous blanket of geotex-

Landowners on the river have been known to lose as much as three feet of their property in a single year, property on which they still have to pay taxes have to pay taxes even though it has disappeared downstream.

Other landowners have used gabion 'baskets', timber or concrete retaining walls, rip-rap or other methods of control. All methods can be helpful if constructed properly. ORCA staff are available to give free advice on the most appropriate means of construction as each site requires special consideration.

A recent change in ORCA floodplain policy allows staff to grant permits for erosion control works under most circum-stances without review by the Execu-tive, thus speeding up the approval process.

All works of this nature require a permit from ORCA prior to work being performed.

Managing your money

A fair number of readers have asked that last May's federal budget proposal about the Registered Home Ownership Savings Plan Savings Plan (RHOSP) be explained in more detail.

The RHOSP program was started in 1974. It allowed Canadian taxpayers who were not homeowners to deduct from their income up to $1,000 a year, if the money was invested in a RHOSP. The lifetime maximum was $10,000. The tax deduction could apply only if the money you amassed in a RHOSP was used to purchase a home. The RHOSP program was designed to encourage Canadians to become home to become home buyers. Because both a husband and wife could own a RHOSP, it meant $2.000 a year could be lax-sheltered in such a plan. The decision to scrap the RHOSP hasn't yet been backed by law. At this time it's still only a budget proposal.

Parliament may decide in its wisdo to continue the program, although such a decision in unlikely. The point to remem-

Wetlands improvement project

Ducks Unlimited Canada has begun a major habitat deve-major habitat development project at a wetlands area off the Hunt Club Road,

northeast of Madoc.
The construction
started last week on a dyke to hold back water and a controlling device will be built in the near future. The marsh area was there for many years, said
Madoc and District
Chapter of Ducks
Unlimited Chairman
Bob Bancroft, and the water levels were kept up by beaver dams.

which owns part of the wetland area, approached the Ducks Unlimited organization for assessment of the situation.

"We have had 300-400 Black Ducks and Mallards at times and many of them nesting in that area," said Mike Quinn, President of the Club, 'but now the water has almost water has almost dried up there.'

there.'
The club has also maintained 15 Wood Duck houses in the swampy terrain since it purchased the property in 1859. The Hunters and Angiers own a 70 acre parcel with about 28 of it swampland. The area on which the

are being constructed is part of the nearby Gogel

After forming After forming a local chapter under Bancroft, the Ducks Unlimited organization agreed to undertake the wetlands habitant development project. 'The ment project. 'The work will cost at least $30,000,' Bancroft

Last Tuesday a dredge, contracted from McFarland Construction, began building a low dyke which will take the place of the unreliable beaver dams. On the downstream side there will be left a shallow pond where the dredged material is excavated. Topool removed from the area will be saved and replaced on top of the dyke to encourage vegetation.

A water level controlling device will be added this fall so that next spring the water can be maintained at an optimum depth for a duck-breeding environment. We have a good base of vegetation, Bancroft said, because the area has already been a flooded wetland.

The Ducks Unlimited Canada organization spends millions annually on similar projects. The purpose of the group is to develop, preserve, restore and maintain the waterfowl habitat on the North American Continent.

"Buck" Carswell

"Buck" Carswell

The vitlage of Madoc said good-bye to Buck Carswell last week.
Carswell, well known and loved by many, passed away suddenly last Wednesday at Belleville General Hospital. He was 59.
Recognized by most as the man behind the wheel of the Co-Op fuel oil truck or driving Madoc Fire Truck 1, Carswell was also a member of the village council, a community-spirited volunteer, a sportsman, an itinerant story-teller and a family man.
Village Reeve Terry Pigden...

'It's difficult to find a measure of a man's success... Buck was a member of perhaps the most exclusive group in Hastings County...a volunteer firefighter. The response of 110 men from all over the county, who came to be present at his funeral...that is a great tribute to the man and a terrific indication of the love that his fellow firemen, and indeed all of the people in this part of Hastings County had for him.

'He was an excellent councillor...a great sense of responsibility to the individual cilizen in the village.

'Madoc Co-Op Manager Bill Havekes...

'He was a tradition...he had been driving in the oil delivery business for 40 years. He 'was' the Co-Op oil business, people called him directly, people that never came to the store...He was always around, sometimes even on his holidays, and he though nothing of making emergency deliveries at any hour.

sometimes even on his holidays, and he thought nothing of making emergency deliveries at any hour.

'It didn't matter how many deliveries he had, though...he always had time to stop and talk...

'The fire department was his whole life...he just got his 40 year medal.. He's been driving the truck ever since I can remember and he always got it to the scene of the fire, no matter what...

'I've known him since I was a child. He started with the fire department during the war, under Chief Kelly Mulrooney...He played goalle in the Trent Vajley League and was a supporter of any sport in fown...He was a great P-R man...I remember when we first started the firemen's booth at the fair; he had half the stuff from his wife's kitchen there!

We'll give him all the honours we can give him."

"Big Cheese" in the press

The 'Big Cheese', over 3,000 lbs. big, was packed into an oversized 'hoop', or cheese press by Harold Cheese Company cheese-Roland (Rolly) Jackson last Tuesday.

The mammoth cheddar will be the cheddar will be the edible representation of the 1986 Interna-tional Plowing Match mascot, 'Big Cheese'. After the ton-andra-half block is waxed and ready for storage in about two weeks, it will be decorated to look like the Plowing Match symbol.

The Cheesey character was selected by the Directors of the Hastings County International Plowing Match because of the significance of the area cheesemak-ing industry to agri-culture and the lifestyle of the County. There are at least five local cheese factories using the production of many prosperous dairy arms farms.

The cheese used up 36,000 lbs, or 15,700 litres, of milk, supplied by the farm of Marvin-boney, Finance Chalrman for the Ploughing Match. Cheesemaker Jackson calculates that with normal losses and shrinkage losses and shrinkage the cheese will weigh 3,240 lbs., well over his goal of creating a 3,000 lb. round. Jackson has been a

by a car.
These are some of the cases that Inspector Robert Cleaver has investigated during his ten years at the Ottawa Humane Society. The Criminal Code and the Humane Society Act give the inspector of a humane society the status of a police officer and the authority to bring to authority to bring to justice those who abuse animals.

Inspector Cleaver ays the Ottawa lumane Society Humane Society receives an average of 600-700 complaints each year relating to animal abuse from concerned neighbors, friends and from anonymous people. Complaints usually deal with such deal with such matters as the lack of shelter, water or food, an animal tied to a short chain or rope, abandonment, and physical abuse such as kicking and hitting hitting.

Although there are many complaints Although there are many complaints there are few prosecutions because, according to Inspector Cleaver, 'a 100 per cent watertight case is needed. So far this year there has only been one successful prosecution in Ottawa. It involved a husband and wife who were each fined $350 for leaving their Chow. Chow outside during winter without adequate shelter. The dog died. In winter without adequate shelter. The dog died. In addition to the fine, the court ruled that the couple could not keep any animals for the next two years. Inspector Cleaver receives two to six calls a day. After receiving a telephone call he goes to the address. If the owner is not there, Inspector Cleaver says he tor Cleaver says he looks at the condition of the animal if it is outside and checks to make sure it has adequate shelter and water. If the animal's condition is serious, the faw requires that the animal be seized immediately and be taken to a veterinarian for examination.

If the Inspector has any doubt as to the condition of the animal he will notify a veterinarian. The will veterinarian accompany the Inspector to the address and make a professional judgprofessional judgment as to whether abuse is present. If the animal is locked inside a house or apartment, a card is left notifying the owners of the problem and requesting them to call the Humane Society within 24 hours. 'If they don't contact us we must get a search warrant from the warrant from the Justice of Peace to enter the home and remove the animal,' says Inspector says Cleaver.

What is the principle behind JL 7353 ?

What is the principle behind 313 (1931)? Mechanics and bodymen have known for years that oil in itself has certain rust controlling properties. However, oil based products are designed for specific purposes, and certain problems arise when they are used for a purpose other than that for which they were designed, such as dealing with moisture present in weld seams, getting into weld seams, dealing with present rust, etc. Hence 313 (333) was designed to take advantage of the natural rust inhibiting properties of oil, yet eliminate the problems.

Maud Carrol of Madoc and Flaud Richardson of Toronto, identical twins at 89 years of age. Born on September 15th 1896, in Methuen Township, the two have lived apart most of their lives, getting together only for special occasions like the birthday party held in Madoc on Sunday. Below is a family portrait with the two girls taken in 1905, when they were nine years old.

Identical twins celebrate 89th

It was Happy 89th for identical twins Maud and Flaud, born Washburn, or September 15th, 1896.
Maud married the late Frank Carrol in 1915, raised a family of 11 children in Methuen, and then lived in Gilmour for 42 years. She now lives on St. Lawrence St. West in Madoc.
Flaud married the late Delbert Richardson in 1920, raised a family

Flaud married the late Delibert Richardson in 1920, raised a family of 6 children on a farm in Alton where she lived for 19 years. She has spent the rest of her life in Toronto.

The twins now have countless grandchildren, great, and great, great grandchildren.

grandchildren.
The double 89th birthday party was held at Maud's home in Madoc on Sunday with a good representation of their families by their sides. What did identical twins do in the first decade of this century? 'Oh, we had lots of fun,' chuckles Flaud. 'Our mother put different coloured ribbons in our hair so the schoolteacher could tell us apart... but after a couple of weeks we switched them.'

'We could come back from the dances with different boyfriends, lice!'

Pigden wary of centre

Madoc Village Reeve Terry Pigden expressed his concern recently about the establishabout the establishment of a new 'Community Resource Centre' being suggested by some area social workers.
The new centre
would essentially be a central clearing house for all social services in the Central Hastings area, combining such orga-nizations as the nizations as the Health Unit, Adult Protection Service Workers, Childrens Mental Health, Legal Aid and Big Brothers and Sisters under one roof.

Interviewed last week by The Review, Pigden's chief question about the new idea is whether it is 'really necessary' in light of the financial pressures already placed on Hastings County and the Municipalities for Social Services funding. 'Is this service being proposed because people really need it?' he asked. 'I think that most people here already know where the social services are.' The Ministry of Community and Community a Social Services, Social Services with social services organizations in the Central Hastings area, plan to hold an information meeting in Madoc on October 3rd to discuss the 3rd to discuss the idea. Reeve Pigden explained that he is not clear at this point on what the social services groups have in mind, and that he looks forward to being informed.

'It will be very interesting to see what the plans are,' he said. 'I would like to see more employ-ment in the area but is this program real-ly necessary?'

ly necessary?
Recently, one of the organizations proposing the new centre, the Centre Hastings Support Network, appeared before the Madoc Council seeking funds for incorporation of their Social Services Network. They received a They received a limited reception. 'We're not too enthusiastic, said Pigden.

proposed Community Resource Centre. The group was seek-ing assistance only to cover legal expenses incurred to incorporate the organization.

The Support Network is an organization of some area social services providers community volunteers who are work-ing to enhance social services in the Central Hastings area, according to the Network spokesper-son. The members work together on a volunteer basis, and were not asking for program funding.

Huge crowds expected

Members of the Stirling and District Business Association got an idea of what to Business Association got an idea of what to expect next year at a presentation given by the International Plowing Match Publicity Committee last Wednesday evening. 'By mid-January you will begin to see a definite increase in traffic.' said Bill Sutherland, Co-Chairman of the Committee. There are expected to be approximately 600 exhibits in the Tented City, run by two to exhibits in the Tented City, run by two to three times as many personel. Some of these people will be coming to Stirling early in the year to check out local facili-ties and the site of the ties and the site of the plowing match.

They will spend in the neighbourhood of

$1 million on the 100 acre site alone, Sutherland told the Association. 'It is no Association. 'It is no longer just a plowing match, he said, it's a farm show. It's a Hastings County Show, our opportunity to show off Hastings County. 'There won't be a business in Stirling that won't be affected, Sutherland went on. 'There will be a lot of traffic all summer long.'

summer long.

Statistics compiled in a poll taken at last year's match which showed, match which showed, among other things, that visitors spent $2,300,000 during the match. Since 80% of the visitors came from within 100 miles of the event, the publishing Committee. of the event, the Publicity Committee is concentrating its efforts from Toronto to Ottawa and in upper New York State.

The fact that only a small percentage of the visitors come to actually watch the plowing events was stressed by Suther-land. Most of them come to see the exhibits, entertainment and to visit a new part of the province. There will be two ladies' programs There will be two ladies' programs running all day every day, and local tourist attractions, shopping areas and towns will be very busy.

What is the principle behind '332.333.7' Mechanics and bodymen have known for years that oil in itself has certain rust controlling properties. However, oil based products are designed for specific purposes, and certain problems arise when they are used for a purpose other than that for which they were designed, such as dealing with moisture present in weld seams, getting into weld seams, dealing with present rust. sct. Hence 317.333 was designed to take advantage of the nature@ust inhibiting properties of oil, yet eliminate the problems.

Ask your Pharmacist

With alcohol so prevalent in modern society, it's not surprising that one of the most common questions posed to pharmacists and physicians is, 'Can I drink alcohol while taking this medication?' It is possibly the most important question you could ask.

Alcohol is a drug, and like prescription and non-prescription medications, alcohol alters the body's delicate chemical balance. Prescribed and non-prescribed drugs try to balance the body's chemical scales in favor of good health. However, when used in conjunction with some drugs, alcohol can drastically tip the scales the other way.

conjunction with some drugs, alcohol can drastically the drought of the way. When both alcohol and another chemical are in your system, the alcohol may cause your body to absorb medication too-rapidly. The result could be a mild overdose and even a mild one can be dangerous, especially for people with heart ailments or high blood pressure. When it comes to alcohol and medication, you can't be too careful. Obtain the expert advice of your pharmacist or physician BEFORE you add alcohol to your system.

Education Is Every Child's Right!

1985 is a landmark year for special education in Ontario. As of September 1, all students with special needs have the right to an education program appropriate to their individual needs and abilities – a big step forward for our children, for our school boards, for our teachers, and for all those who believe in equality of educational opportunity

During the last five years, Ontario school boards, teacher education institutions, teachers, and administrators have worked together to make this

Cairn dedicated

'To the memory of Canada's Veterans and also those who follow them in their of building task future peace

Those words set the scene for the dedication of the cairn at Madoc Township Madoc Township Public School on Sunday afternoon. The ceremonies culminated the dreams of School Principal Art Gough and his committee of volunteers who have been working dili-gently to see the memorial constructed.

constructed.
Well over 100
members of various branches of the Royal Canadian
Legion, a bagpipe band, Members of Parliament, School Board Officials and scores of guests and students attended the immpressive affair The idea behind the cairn stemmed from the fact that Remembrance Day is no longer a school holiday. Gough felt that a focal point was needed for the students when Remembrance Day were at ceremonies observed at the school. He took his idea to members of the public and formed a committee of people who concurred with his feelings.

The committee Mary Pigden, a member of the Madoc Township Madoc Townshi Council (chairper son); Gary Gurney, a parent and Korean War veteran and Fred Ryan of Loyal-ist College, a World War II veteran.

committee received the blessing of the Hastings County Board of Education and went to work. Funds for the work. Funds for the cairn's construction were raised locally but much of the material and labour was donated. The was donated. The most interesting aspect of the new cairn is that the rocks which make it were brought to the school by the children. 'At one point we had from 160 to 200 large rocks sitting in the hall of the school, says Gough. A diagram is being prepared which will show the location of the individual rocks submitted by the students.

There area also stones from Normandy and Dieppe and the brass plaque fronting the monu-ment was donated by the Madoc Branch of The Royal Canadian Legion.

Fire destroys contents of Huntingdon house

The Huntingdon Township and Madoc Village Fire Depart-ments turned out to a house fire in RR 4 Madoc on Sunday morning. alarm was turned in at about 11:00 AM by neigh-bours, who observed smoke rising from several windows of the white frame house. Owners of the home, Willy and Linda Bruckmann, were away at the time. Pirefighters responded in about seven minutes but the interior of the building was badly damaged by smoke and heat by the time they arrived.

Madoc Village fire-men had an oppor-tunity to use a new 'fogging' nozzle, designed to reduce the interior tempera-ture, and according to fireman Larry Carswell, it was used very successfully. Cause of the smol-dering fire was uncertain by press time but officials believe that it started in a living room chesterfield. chesterfield.

The report tentatively concludes that acid rain in the Muskoka area causes an additional stress to sugar maple trees that have also been plagued by the following factors: a severe forest tent caterpillar epidemic in the late 1970s, spring droughts in 1976, 1977 and 1983, root rot, tree age and root rot, tree age and management procedures.

The current mysterious decline of sugar maple trees, what scientists refer to as the 'Maple Dieback Syndrome' became evident in 1978 in the Muskoka area. Producers suspected acid rain.

In 1970 the then overnment barred ne International Court of Justice from hearing disputes that might arise concern-ing the jurisdiction, a 100 mile limit, exer-cised by Canada for prevention of pollu-tion. The Secretary General of the United Nations has recently been notified that we are withdrawing this reservation and recognizing the authority of the recognizing the authority of the World Court in this field. This government is confident that our sovereignty will be upheld by the World Court should it ever be challenged. Finally, the construction of a polar, class 8 ice-breaker will soon begin. The Ministers of Defence and Transport will bring to Cabinet regormendations with regard to the design

Throughout this government's career have concentrated on consolidat-ing our national unity and strengthening our economy.

Minister of External Affairs said, 'Unity' and strength: these are the hallmarks of sovereignty and of the policies of this government.

Twenty-two years ago the issue of sovereignty was discussed and though policy was proposed, it was never imple-mented. This government acted to ensure and protect the sove-reignty of our nation.

Throughout my Summer Tour many constituents brought their concerns regarding the Ameri-can ship Polar Sea, that entered Canada's Arctic territory in August, to my attention. The government's action in this matter demonstrates our intention to preserve and maintain Canada's sovereignty.

If any good has resulted from these bombings, it has been bombings, it has been to show us a glimpse of the terrible reality of nuclear war. And remember, those two bombs dropped on Japan were small compared to those available today. If we cannot learn from our mistakes, we are indeed, doomed. This is not the time to dredge up the time to dredge up old hatreds, but to develop tolerance and understanding.

And to speak out...
We elect our leaders
to do our bidding, not the other way around. Burying our heads in the sand will not make the boogyman of nuclear war

Film at St. John's

Speaking 'Speaking Our Peace', a new hour-long documentary from the National Film Board will be shown on Wednes-day, September 25, 8 p.m., at St. John's United Church, 26

'Speaking Our Peace' is a carefully structured and provocative essay on the current global crisis seen through the eyes of dedicated women working for lasting peace. It combines the direccombines the direc-tional talents of Bonnie Sherr Klein (Not a Love Story) and Terri Nash (If You Love This Planet) with the scriptwriting skills of Gloria Demers (Behind the Veil).

'Speaking Our Peace' examines the insanity of militar-ism, by documenting the insights and vision of several women who dare to speak their peace. It also reveals the terri-ble extent to which 'World War Three' is 'World War Three' is already claiming its victims.

Reducing hunters accident rate

by Rick Morgan
II's time for another breakthrough in hunting safety, this time with visual rather than educational means. If all big and small game hunters wore hunter (blaze) orange, we could reduce Ontario's already low accident rate by as much as 75 per cent, says The Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters.

Over the past two decades, hunter safety training and education programs have resulted in substantial improvements in the safety of the sport.

Numbers tell the ments in the safety of the sport. Numbers tell the story eloquently. In the early 1960's, when hunter safety prog-rams were just beginning, up to 150 hunting accidents! were reported year-iy. By the early 1980's, the annual rate had fallen to less than 50. Fatal acci-dents have declined even more spectacueven more spectacu-larly, from 36 deaths in 1960 to fewer than five in any year since

Hunting is now one of the safest outdoor recreations, far less risky than skiing, skating, swimming or boating. In fact, a hunter is much safer in the field than he is driving on the highway.

in the field than he is driving on the highway.

Even so, we can continue to work for improvements. The recent extension and modification of the hunter safety training program has included a new manual and more rigorous hunter education reqirements. And the complete use of hunter orange can make hunting even safer simply by making hunters more visible in the field.

In fact, having numbers wear the equivalent of a vest and hat 500 square inches of blaze orange on their back, chest and head - will reduce hunting accidents by 75 per cent.

In North America, nearly 40 states and provinces have mandatory hunter mandatory hunter orange require-ments. Those areas have all experienced a dramatic decline in the number of acci-dents in which a hunter has been mistaken for a game

There has also been a significant reduction in hunting accidents that have occured because a member of the party was out of sight when the shot was fired. Hunter orange makes it far easier for members of a party to keep visual contact with each other both over long Cont'd to page 11A management of muskellunge. In a 10-page brief, the Federation has made 18 specific recom-mendations, includ-ing harvest regulation changes, better stocking programs, increased public education, and more research

The muskellunge is a prize game fish. It has trophy status due to its fighting ability. large size, and unique challenge to catch. It is important in most areas of the province and is thought to be in danger if action isn't taken now. In various areas, too many muskies are being kept, they are being harvested before harvested before they reach spawning age, their habitat is being destroyed, and they are being displaced by pike.

After discussions Zone meetings across the province, OFAH members approved the brief and its recommenda-tions. Among them are raising the size limit to 38 inches, limit to 38 inches, identifying and protecting all major spawning areas, modernizing hatcheries and rearing the young to 8 or 10 inches before stocking, reducing harvest levels and establish-ing trophy waters. If your idea of fishing is leaning back, dropping a line in the water and enjoying your catch for dinner that night, don't go after muskellunge. Muskie fishing is hard work. It requires natience It requires patience, stamina and a lot more determination than most of us are prepared to give. Even experienced prepared to give. Even experienced muskellunge fisher-men can take up to 100 hours to hook a muskie, and some anglers have been known to spend years going back for one in particular that got Muskie fishermen readily acknowledge that their fascination for this elusive fish borders on fanatical. Before they even hook one, they keep track of the number of times their lures are hit or followed.

When they finally land one, they usually put it back. They keep only exceptionally-sized fish, mostly for mounting. Why do muskie anglers put so much time, effort and hard work into hooking a fish they won't eat and likely won't even keep? Maybe it's the stories of the 50 and 60 pounders that were common 30 years ago, or the were common 30 years ago, or the prospect of breaking the world's record of almost 70 pounds set in 1957. CHSS Martial Arts club news

Little known in the West, the concept of 'chi' - or 'internal power', has been for centuries an integral part of Oriental medicine and martial arts. Undoubtedly the most widely-reported method of 'chi' application has to be accupuncture, which to most eyes seems to involve the simple insertion of tiny needles into special places along the body, a mysterious cure from the Far East for anything from headable the addiction. anything from heada-ches to addiction to

A far more dramatic example of 'chi' application still must be one woman's act of lifting a car off her child pinned underneath - raw, willful, sudden, without revenue.

'Chi' - odourless, tasteless' - travels through mind and body like a stream; blocked by tension and sickness, it stagnates; allowed to circulate and flow through exercise. It through exercise, it noruishes the body, giving health. This, it must be understood, is only a rough and cursory explanation of what has been studied and applied in the Orient for

There exists a long historical association between 'chi' and martial arts. It was understood long ago that to tap the stream of this marvellous energy meant unearthing hidden sources of strength, and survival. Personand survival. Person-ally, I can testify to having seen a grown man thrown more than fifteen feet across a floor with the mere flick of a wrist, and a relaxed wrist at that. Somehow, it seems paradoxical to expect anyone to apply martial artis tech-niques while remain-ing relaxed, for we associate power with muscular strength; the more bulging the muscles the greater the effect that arm is going to have. Here mass almost equals efficiency. efficiency.

But when we arrive at 'chi' training, and the 'soft, relaxed' application of strength, the words of the Chinese phil-osopher Lao Tze serve to explain the serve to explain the difference: what is hard, with age, becomnes brittle, and therfore breaks; on the otherhand, what is soft anf flexible. wnat is soft anf flexi-ble, gives away, bends and springs back. Crickets shouldn't be taken for granted

Muskellunge Ontario's elusive fresh water giant

Cont'd from page 2A size, as well as to their long, fang-like teeth and their tendency when tendency when hooked to fight on the surface. But despite their reputation as big fish, the fact is that large, trophy-size large, trophy-size muskellunge are now rare in Canada, and fish approaching world-record size fish approaching, world-record size have not been seen for over 20 years. What is happening to the muskellunge? Do world-record sizes still exist? Are they given way to they giving way to fishing pressure? How long does it take to grow a 50 to 60 pound muskie? These and other questions are being looked at by the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources in an effort to better under-stand what is meeded maintain. improve, the quality and quantity of and quantity of Ontario's muskellunge population.

The first step has been establishing criteria for study. says MNR fisheries says MNR fisheries scientist Dr. John Casselman. We have been reviewing the muskellunge situation for some time, says Casselman. In 1982, the ministry formed a committee formed a committee to produce a prior-ized list of research needs for the species. Since the list was developed, several research studies have been initiated that pertain directly that pertain directly to muskie

populations.
The committee found that a survey of anglers, fishery
workers and biologists showed unanimous agreement key areas needing study. One of the most important priorities for all groups was the iden-tification and protec-tion of muskie spawning and nursery area requirements - with the goal of starting programs of habitat improvement.

Most groups did not consider fish culture to be high on the list, but signs of self-reproduction in reproduction in stocked muskie popu-lations have since prompted the mini-stry to take another look at the importance, and implica-tions of stocking muskellunge.

Perhaps the biggest breakthrough muskellunge research has been in determining just how determining just how long it takes for this lish to reach trophy size: While it was once believed that it took only 12 to 18 years. it has now been established that it actually takes from 20 to 30 years 20 to 30 years

The implications of this are enormous, says Casselman. Rebuilding the quality of the muskie fishery to where it was in the 1950s will take longer than we thought, and will require extra diligence on the part of every muskie fisherman. To get a 30-year-old fish, they've got to put back the 20-year-old back the 20-year-old ones. The more accurate method of aging muskellunge and pike was developed by Casselman in the 1960s. The usual method uses a fish's scales to determine age. Casselman discovered that on discovered that older or slow-growing pike and muskies, the mark-ings on the cleithrum counted in bone - counted in much the same way as rings on a tree stump - were more accurate and reliable in determining age than the scale method. The cleiturum is a Jarge, flat crescent-shaped bone lying immediately behind the gill opening on each side of the fish, supporting the front fins.

Dr. Ed Crossman

Dr. Ed Crossman of the Royal Ontario Museum (ROM) has worked closely with Casselman for over Casselman for over six years on what they call The Cleithrum Project. 'After establishing that the cleithrum bone is a reliable indicator of age, as well as other biological data, we decided to create a research repository at the museum for at the museum for muskie and pike cleithra, says Cross-man. The joint study was initiated by MNR and the ROM in 1979. With some funding from the museum and the Muskies Canada organization, and the help of volun-teers, Crossman and Casselman asked anglers and taxider-mists in Canada and mists in Canada and the U.S. to clean and send in eleithrum bones from muskies and pike. 'We can find out more than age from this bone. It also allows us to determine the rate of growth of the fish growth of the fish, size at different ages, sex based on growth rate and whether the fish is a muskie or a muskie/pike hybrid,'

Crossman says. Kits containing Crossman says.

Kits containing special mailing envelopes and illustrated instructions for bone removal have been sent to muskie clubs and hundreds of taxidermists across North America. A cleithrum bone can easily be removed by a taxidermist without detroying the appear-ance of the fish for mounting. The senders are also requested to provide specific information such as length, girth, sex, date and location of canture.

sex, date and location of capture.

'We acknowledge receipt of the bones and always notify the senders of the age of their fish, says Crossman. The response has been response has been excellent although we're still getting far more from Wisconsin than we are from Ontario. We'd like to ontario. We dilike to see more Ontario taxidermists and anglers getting involved in the project. Crossman says interest in the project has been expressed from as far away as and England. as Europe

A museum volun-teer is working on a computer program for the Clethrum

Reducing hunters accident rate

Coeff from page IA distances and in thick cover. Hunter orange, first markeded about 20 years ago, is the only color that will make hunters more visible under all conditions of light and cover. Red, once regarded as the traditional color for hunting, is no longer recommended for two reasons. Among the 10 per cent of the population that has color vision deficiencies, many suffer from red-green color bindness, and may not be able to distinguish red easily. And, early and late in the day, red becomes difficult for almost anyone to distinguish. anyone to distinguish. The startled look

The startled look on a television producer's face is my personal reminder of the superiority of blaze orange over red. Two of us - me in blaze orange, my companion in red - were behind an evergreen tree for a on hunter safety. I was visible but when my friend stepped out from behind the tree, the producer was so startled to see a second person, his jaw nearly hit the ground.

If some colors aren't noticeable, others are dangerous. White, for example, is an extremely poor color' choice. Recently, a hunting fatality in eastern Canada was caused by a hunter mistaking a white cap for the white tail of a deer. And yellow, once thought to be a safe color, appears to be white under the light conditions of sumrise and sunset.

Blaze orange fluorescent orange with a dominant all light and weather conditions. Hunter orange is, in fact, twice as bright as natural objects seen in the bush. The color glows because it converts ultraviolet and blue light waves to visible orange, enhancing the orange reflected back to the viewer by white light. Those who aren't familiar with the color have probably seen it worn by highway construction crews.

One of the reasons for reluctance in making blaze orange mandatory for hunting is the objections of some hunters who feel that blaze orange will reduce their hunting success. But in areas where hunter orange has been made mandatory, the deer harvest has increased while the accident rate plummeted. In Maine, for example, when blaze

I have had deer walk within a few feet of me while I was wearing blaze orange. It is movement, noise and scent that spook wildlife, not color. Mammals, in particular, are believed to only see colors as shades of grey.

colors as shades or grey.

Members of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters have, over the years, taken a leading role in hunter safety. Recently, they passed a resolution asking for blaze orange to be a requirement for all hunters except waterfowlers and big game bowhunters. The results are game bownuners.

The results are bound to be positive. Hunting accidents will diminish. Parties in the woods will be able to maintain visual contact with each other more easi. each other more easily, and lost hunters will be much easier for searchers to spot.

Managing Your Money

MARDON
The art of sound money management is to spread your risk, This applies whether you're a saver or an investor.
In all too many cases where Canadians suffered severe financial losses you will find they had put all of their money into a single risky investment.
There's an old

There's an old stockbrokers' saying: Don't risk more than you can afford to lose.

afford to lose.

If everybody followed that advice there would be precious little risk capital in the country, because no sensi-ble person underble person under-takes an investment with the idea of losing money. We all invest money in stocks, bonds, mutual funds, bonds, mutual funds, real estate or what-have-you in the expectation of profit-ing from the deal. The possibility of losing all your money is rarely considered. However, because it's always there as a possibility, you should take some precautions.

There are several tried-and-true approaches which There are several tried-and-true approaches which will minimize your exposure to risk. (You'll probably never be able to completely avoid risk unless you buy only government bonds or put your money in government. There are drawbacks to taking that course of action.)

The first step to take before you undertake any savings or investment program is determine your own risk 'comfort zone'. If you're married, your spouse's attitude toward risk should be

Hog barn warmer

A Renfrew County hog farmer was able to reduce energy costs in heating his finishing barn using adapted technology funded in part by a Canada-Ontario Eastern Ontario Subsidi-barn using adapted technicity indiced in partby a Canada-Ontario Eastern Ontario Subsidiary Agreement (EOSA) program.

Jack Fletcher of RR 3, Cobden, had a prototype tube and shell heat exchanger installed to provide extra heat needed in his 350 hog finishing barn. The exchanger is a series of 98 polyethylene tubes in a baffle shell, fixed to the largest of three air ventilators on one wall of the barn. The barn's exhaust air is fanned into the tubes transferring warmth to incoming fresh air.
The unit has a damper motor on a time clock to close shutters at intervals stopping the inflow of outside air, so the exhaust air passing through the tubes can help thaw any toe build-up inside the shell.
Using the heat exchanger, Fletcher can save more than $850,00. Fletcher received assistance under the Agricultural Technology
